A Compliment The Raleigh Newsthus compliments our Deputy Sheriff, Mr. A. H. Morris: The Deputy Sheriff of New Hanover who brought up six prisoners to the Penitentiary Thursday is an example to be envied and followed. Thirty-five years of age, he has never tasted liquor, wine, cider or beer, has never taken a chew of tobacco or smoked a cigar, does not know a card, has never seen a game of billiards, and is now chief ruler of the Independent Order of Rechabites of Wilmington.

Fire in Swansboro, A friend at Swansboro, Onslow county, writes us, under date of July 12th, the particulars of a fire which occurred in that place. He says : "Our quiet little village was thrown into quite an excitement on Saturday morning last, 10th inst., about one o'clock A. M., by the cry of fire, which soon proved to be the distillery belonging to Capt. Wm. P. Moore, but at the time of the disaster was being run by Mr. John A. Pittman, merchant of this olice. The store is badly damaged. and some of the buildings near by consumed. The loss to Mr. Pittman is quite heavy, in loss of crude and manufactured stuff, and coming as it does when the hard-times are bearing heavy upon the strongest, it will be felt more keenly by those like himself, who are struggling with a commendable energy and perseverance to conquer misfortunes and establish a business here that will make our old town what it was before the war. July 12th 1875. DEAR JOURNAL-A day at Charlotte gave us ample time to view the city, and note the general depression in business. Many of the merchants are trying to dispose of their wares and merchandise at cost, and less than cost ; and we were informed by a "reliable person," that "it was so dull as never was in the past seven years.' Charlotte cannot be said to be a manuof some very neat, fine and attractive together with their garrisons. residences - one tobacco factory and two tan yards are her manufactories. The United States mint has been dispensed with, and the balance of the machinery at the Assayist office has been removed to Washington.
